Amber Gray

Dorm 1, Rosina Building, first floor

Continuum movement as based on the work pioneered by Emilie Conrad, increases flexibility, motility, well-being, creativity, innovation, adaptability and vitality on many levels. Because it does not rely on fixed patterns or postures, it enables us to access our capacity for fluid, free, non-constrained movement, which enhances a sense of youthfulness, aliveness and well being. It is a particularly valuable resource to use in the restorative movement process after trauma and for resilience after injury, illness and chronic stress.

Amber is using Continuum Movement more and more in her own work, and usually combines it into her innovative approaches to stress and trauma recovery. She combines it with somatic psychology, current trauma and neuropsychological research, movement therapy, ritual, and creative arts, in the trainings she provides for health and mental health professionals and paraprofessionals worldwide. In this workshop she will focus on Continuum Movement Practice as a means of teaching us to reduce physical limitations through movement innovation, to counter the "densifying" process of aging and stress, and increase both perceptual and mental awareness.

Continuum will be explored in this workshop as a powerful form of movement that can access individual and collective bio-intelligence, or body wisdom. It borrows from the authentic movement principle of witness to develop the abilities to use this conscious movement practice to discover, uncover and express deep inner experience as root to thoughts, feelings, actions and stories. This course on continuum will be a rich landscape of sound, breath, and movement exploration to increase the awareness of the wellsprings of creativity, flexibility and joy that exists in the body and provide an opportunity to ground us into the experience of corporal presence.

This three day event is for dance movement therapists, creative arts therapists, psychotherapists. Mental health professionals, body-workers, and other allied healing and health care practitioners involved in movement and hands-on practices. Continuum Movement experiences can provide the opportunity for growth and wellness for both the practitioner and their clients.

Abbotsford Convent

Revitalise and restore your energy. as well as learn, at famous and beautiful Abbotsford Convent in a retreat-like atmosphere. The former Convent of the Good Shepherd, was the most important Catholic institutional complex constructed in Victoria and is notable for its medieval French ecclesiastic architectural character, its grandeur, and beautiful gardens and grounds that sweep down to the River Yarra in the valley; surrounded by the aesthetic qualities of farmland and rural setting,. The setting was enjoyed for thousands of years by the traditional owners of the land, the Wurundjeri, for whom the nearby junction of the Yarra River and Merri Creek was an important meeting point. The farming tradition continues with the adjacent Collingwood Children's Farm and the land is probably the oldest freehold farm land in Victoria, right in the heart of the city of Melbourne. The Sisters of the Good Shepherd were remarkable custodians of this unique place from 1863 to 1975 and the valley has changed little since the early days of settlement.
